WHO WE ARE

Cognisci Information Systems and Technologies for Development Foundation (CISTDF) is a technology-based NGO working internationally to accelerate social development and to foster the well-being of marginalized persons and communities by advocating the implementation of ICT-assisted initiatives. It seeks to maximize the potentials and effectiveness of existing infrastructures related to health, social development, employment, education - and especially ICT education, and always strives to especially empower and involve women, children and youth. CISTD liaises and works jointly with UN agencies, other NGOs and the organized private sector.

MISSION STATEMENT

- To create and promote publications, software, training resources relevant to the development of health, employment, grassroots social development and education.
- To promote the growth of the use of ICT initiatives in all spheres of society.
- To empower women, children and youth participation as agents of social development and change.
- To facilitate the cooperation of professional groups and interests towards creating and implementing grass roots development and social change through the use of relevant ICT initiatives.
- To actively pursue and promote the integration of and use of Open Source technologies and tools in effectively improving community and industrial productivities.
